

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I can actually come home in the evening and relax after a day at work without having to go through a lot of junk answering machine messages and phone calls interrupting supper and my TV viewing in the evening. Since our law has been in effect, I doubt if I receive 1 or 2 unwanted call per month. It has been great. If anything the FCC should model Indiana's law as a federal law on unwanted phone calls. Myself and many other Hoosiers will be very upset if anything on the Federal Level is done to lessen Indiana's UNWANTED PHONE LAW.
